I. COMPRENSIÓN DE UN TEXTO:Life expectancy: Do you want to live to be 100?How about 90?

Most people would like to live to be 90 and expect to live until 80. Thomas Peris, an assistant professor at Harvard Medical School who has studied thousands of centenarians says that contrary to popular belief, those who survive to be 100 usually remain active and healthy well into their 90s. Their final problems with illness are relatively short in the end.

A survey of 2032 people in New England showed some interesting results. It indicated that people with university education wanted and expected to live longer than those without. Lower income people tended to be more pessimistic about their future quality of life. Women expected to live longer than men. Experts say for most people the secret to living longer lies in a mixture of good genes and good behaviour, including a positive mental attitude. Those who live longer tend to be more optimistic and less neurotic.

Interestingly, Spanish women have the second longest lifespan in the world (just behind Japanese women). This is largely attributed to the famous Mediterranean diet.

The message appears to be clear: If you want to live to a very healthy 100 you should eat well and keep an active mind.
